Indication of Fair Weather Brings Relief

Mercury in Thermometers
Climb With the Sun.

3 DEATHS REPORTED

Fair Weather to Check
Rising Waters of Swollen Streams

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The weather forecast for today was rising temperatures, which is hoped will bring relief to frozen Arkansas. Three deaths were attributed directly or indirectly from the present cold wave. No sub-zero temperatures were recorded in northwest Arkansas today. The mercury climbing with the sun, Fort Smith reported two below early this morning as compared to ten below yesterday. Ten degrees above was reported here. Indications of fair weather brings hope for relief to more than 200 families in the Blytheville flood district who have been marooned by flood waters of the St. Francis river. Milder temperatures will aid in checking the rise of water along swollen Arkansas streams, and crowds engaged along White and St. Francis rivers to resume work.

The State military department authorized the use of coats and blankets in National Guard headquarters at Blytheville for flood refugees there.

BYTHEVILLE, Jan. 23.—(AP)—An airplane from Memphis arrived today shortly before noon, and made preparations for a flight over Big Lake flood area to bring relief to more than 250 families marooned in their homes by icy waters, and suffering from cold and hunger.

Two motor and flat boats failed in effort to make progress against the icy waters to reach destitute families.

Expect Crowd At Arkadelphia Meet

Weather Reports Show
Fair and Warmer for South Ark. C. of C.

Close to 500 men and women are expected to journey to the college town from points in the 25 southern counties represented in the regional chamber.

Luther Ellison, of Camden, secretary of the chamber, telegraphed The Star at noon today a last-minute appeal for attendance from the Hope district. Magnolia and Camden will be well represented, it is said, and clearing weather should permit highway traffic between Hope and Arkadelphia.

One of the featured speakers on tomorrow's program is Paul C. Van Zandt, chief engineer of the Arkansas Portland Cement company, at Okay; and Governor Barnett will address the meeting at the close tomorrow night.

Man Set Afire By Cough Drops

EXETER, Eng., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Cough drops a policeman was carrying in his trousers pocket burst into flame while he was riding a bicycle near here.

This was his story and he stuck to it, and the doctor who treated him, burns eventually verified it. The cough drops, it seems, contained potassium chlorate. Carried in the pocket, they had come into contact with the phosphorus on the side of an empty safety match box, whereupon nature took its course.

Crop Looms Unless Relief Gained.

HORATIO, Jan. 23.—Fear has been expressed by fruit growers in this section that unless weather moderates the peach crop on the several thousand acres in this part of Arkansas will be damaged seriously.

Though no damage had been reported this week, it is thought that the extreme cold weather will cause the crop to be much shorter this year than last.

A two-inch blanket of snow covered the streets of Horatio, and motorists reported that traffic on the highway as far as DeQueen had been hampered seriously.

Trial for Slaying of Son-In-Law.

SOON TO KNOW FATE

Ruined His Daughter's
Life Says Prosecuting
Attorney.

ASHDOWN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The fate of J. K. Stevens, 84-year-old Confederate veteran, on trial for the fatal stabbing of his 60-year-old son-in-law W. R. Kernell, was placed into the hands of a jury at noon today.

This "man should be punished for the cold blooded murder" shouted prosecuting attorney John J. DuLaney in his closing arguments to the jury.

"Of course he is old, and asks for mercy, but Stevens showed no mercy to Kernell when he killed him from behind with a knife without giving him any chance, creeping up on him and yielding a knife which proved fatal to Kernell. He ruined his daughter's life by the deed. No wonder she turned against him."

Can't Be Prosecuted for Stealing Liquor

TEXARKANA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—In addition to being a scoundrel, a person who pays money for liquor is somewhat of a "chump" because liquor is worth more than the money paid for it.

"There is no property value to whisky," avers the deputy prosecutor.

"Someone goes into a house and steals 40 gallons of liquor he can't be prosecuted for grand larceny because the booze is valueless."

"If there are articles of value in the house and the intruder doesn't take them—just takes the whisky—he can't be prosecuted for burglary."

However, the intruder could be prosecuted for trespassing, the state's attorney said.

Texarkana Girl Dies From Cold

Brother To Dead Child
Lies Critically Ill
In Home.

TEXARKANA, Jan. 23.—The second casualty of the severe blizzard which has lashed at this section for days, the mercury dropping below the zero mark early Wednesday and the fifth snowfall of the season following, was registered Wednesday with the death of an infant from exposure.

The baby, 14-day-old daughter of residents of College Hill, was buried by the East Undertaking company Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Towler, indigent Wednesday while Orval Towler, nine-year-old brother, also victim of the ruthless elements, lay in a critical condition on his rickety cot in the leaky, tumble-down old house on East street.

A physician said Wednesday night that the boy will probably die if he be the cold house and placed in a hospital is not removed from the cold house, and placed in a hospital where medical attention can be given. He is suffering from bronchial pneumonia contracted while gathering fire wood in the snow last Saturday.

Neighbors, seeing the suffering of the large family whose men folks have been without work for weeks, supplied them with fire wood and food, but the relief came too late to save the life of the child. More than half of its short life was spent in a cold room which was practically roofless in the point of turning away the heavy rainfall and melting snow which has not ceased here for more than a week.

Business College To Open March 1

of Little Rock
School.

Hope is to get a branch school of the Little Rock Business college about March 1, Edward Hill, secretary of the Little Rock institution, announced yesterday while here on a business visit.

The Little Rock school, which a couple of years ago absorbed the Whyte Commercial School, has graduated 1,700 students and placed many of them in responsible business positions today.

"Hope seems to be ideally situated for a first-class business school," Hill said yesterday. "We get a considerable number of students out of this city already, and a school located here would not only draw from the city proper but the splendid trade territory which extends for many miles around. We are working through Hope Chamber of Commerce at present, and if we get enough students to open by that time, we shall be in business March 1."

SAVED WOMAN'S LIFE

Salesman Painfully Burned
In Rescue From Burning Home.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Robert J. V. Bock, rural route 3, El Dorado, was awarded a bronze medal by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission today for his action in saving Mrs. Norma W. Pratt, 42, from burning to death on Dec. 18, 1929, at El Dorado.

The award was one of 25 made by the commission at its 26th annual meeting. Two silver medals were given those whose acts of heroism were recognized by the commission.

Bock, a salesman, the commission report said, rescued Mrs. Bock from her burning home. The fire started in a rear room and gained considerable headway before she became aware of it. Dazed with fright, she remained in a room adjoining a hall in which there was an outside door. Flames had begun to sweep the hall when Bock entered the house in search of Mrs. Pratt. As he approached, the woman ran into the hall, into the jamb of the outside door, and staggered back. Bock caught her and pushed her through the doorway to safety. Both were seriously burned, but recovered.

Ladies Night Event To Be

Barlow.

Carter G. Gibson, a former Hope boy, who is now a successful druggist in San Angelo, Texas, writes his father, John S. Gibson, pioneer Hope druggist, to encourage organization of a Retail Merchants association in Hope, in a letter received today.

"If they will get the organization to running right," he writes, "it will be the best thing that has happened for the merchants of Hope, as well as their customers. Shortly after I came here, and as soon as the San Angelo association had investigated my credit record, I received about 25 letters from San Angelo firms inviting me to take advantage of the privileges of the charge account which had already been opened on their books for me, if I saw fit to use it."

"Of course, I send out the same kind of letters now."

By the way, we are having the coldest weather in 30 years out here.

White Man Harnesses "Evil Water- fall Spirits" and Aged Bow and Arrow Indian Stands Awed

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Jan. 22.—Much sacred Indian lore is attached to Two Medicine Falls bordering the boundary of Glacier National Park where the white man soon is to build a power plant. While the Indians of the Glacier Park reservation don't like the idea at all, there is no likelihood of an Indian uprising.

Recently white engineers were surveying the new power site, Ku-Si-Su-Ce (Bear Chief, one of the few remaining old bow and arrow Indians, stood above the canyon and watched the operation with great curiosity for he and his tribesmen used to herd by these Falls when following the trail on hunting expeditions. They were afraid of the evil under-water spirits that were thought to lurk in the torrential stream.

The aged Indian granted monosyllables in awe when told the spirits of the waterfalls were going to be harnessed by the white man.

It seemed amazing to him that the force of the falling water, which is used to drive a great machine, would be to make lightning, and that this lightning would be carried by wires to furnished dazzling "bottles of light" cook or freeze man's food, wash and iron his clothes, grind wheat into flour and make voices come from far away through the air.

And to think that these under-water spirits the Indians dreaded so would be conquered and made to do all these things at the bidding of the Pale-face man. "Guess Great Spirit thinks more of white man than He did of Indian, or He'd told Indians about this many moons ago," was the only explanation the old Red Man could make when pressed through an interpreter for his impressions of the transformation going on.

"You Are Going To Be

The private detective has been on guard for the last few weeks. He was employed by the woman's husband, Hector Turnbull, Paramount pictures official.

Man Shot When He Was Thought To Be A Rum Runner

Was Shot When He Descended From Boat
Along River Front

WITHOUT WARNING

Groans From Wounded
Man Attract Attention of Officer.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Walter Brundt, aged 27, was shot and probably fatally wounded when he descended from a boat at the foot of Maple street here early today.

He told police that he thought a federal officer did the shooting. He was unable to give his name. He said that he and his companion were moving along the river front, and that neither were armed and possessed liquor. They decided to pull up to the Maple street dock, and were stepping from the boat when a uniformed man came out from behind a clump of bushes and shot him without warning.

With a wound in his stomach, he fell back into the boat and his companion immediately headed into the current. Three miles from the scene of the shooting the boat came ashore and his companion deserted him. The uniformed man made no attempt to halt the boat as it pulled away.

Brundt lay in the boat more than an hour before groans attracted the attention of Charles Snell, an officer.

A short time later at police station a report came that two custom officers walked in and told that they fired at a man thought to be a rum runner and believed they wounded him. The officers refused to give their names.

Regarding Back Taxes

THE following news story came out of Little Rock yesterday:

"Attorney General Hal L. Norwood Tuesday paid into the state treasury $10,126.81 in back taxes collected from five oil companies in Union county and one in Little River county. The money represented back taxes on oil leases which the state supreme court held last fall are taxable separately from the fee on the land."

Some time ago The Star attacked Mr. Norwood editorially for his back tax policy, and for engaging special counsel who are said to receive twenty per cent of the state's collections. It seemed to us that the theory that a state go back indefinitely into the history of private business, regardless how many times it had changed ownership, was outrageous. Furthermore, if the state had to pay a brokerage fee of twenty per cent it seemed to us it had lost all moral right to make any collection at all.

One fact that was not originally reported in the news stories, however, was the wrongful decision of an earlier attorney general who held that oil leases and royalties were not subject to separate taxation. Said taxes were not paid, and it fell to Mr. Norwood's administration to get a decision from the supreme court and then go after the collections.

In this instance there is little doubt but that the oil companies relied on a spurious legal opinion. In their own minds they probably knew the opinion would not stand. Anyone who knows the basis of valuations in an oil field knows that the state was entitled to the tax money which Mo. Norwood just now is collecting.

The turning over of $10,000 to schools and other public treasuries is worth-while, of course. Nobody can honestly criticize Mr. Norwood for the net sum which his back tax activities are bringing into the state government.

But we believe the majority of voters agree with our original position, that the principle of letting taxes slide and then going back many years to collect them, is inefficient, unbusiness-like, and makes for bad government. We believe the majority also frown on the idea that the state has to pay a private citizen twenty per cent to collect what is justly due the state.

For some of this Mr. Norwood is not to blame. He inherited the oil cases referred to above, from an earlier administration. So the rest of it belongs to the people and their government. It is just another illustration of how loose a tax-collecting system Arkansas had been functioning under, until she began to look into matters two years ago.

Fear Is Not Enough

THE London naval conference is one of the most hopeful signs that a war-weary world has had since the armistice. It indicates, plainly enough, that the dread of war is at last able to make itself felt in high places; a thing that was not true at all prior to 1914.

Yet the London conference is only part of the job that awaits the lovers of world peace. H. M. Tomlinson, famous British novelist and war correspondent, sums the situation up very clearly in a recent statement.

"A fear of disaster," he says, "will not save us from it. It is no good thinking a wholesome fear of war will prevent war. That is but a negative virtue. What we want is a positive desire for peace so passionate if it is threatened that statesmen and diplomats will fear the democracy more than they now fear the wrath of God."

"Let them once realize that war means the march of a populace on its own capital to prevent an iniquity, and war-minded statesmen and officials will go the way of the plague rats and smallpox."

"Let us make no mistake about it. Reduction of armaments is not good enough. It is no good talking that way in this age of machines manned by myriads of organized craftsmen with their standardized opinions. Airplanes and submarines to destroy homes and cut off sea borne supplies can be made like fountain pens when required. They can be even mechanically directed nowadays with electrical and gyroscopic devices."

"Let our governors know that we not only do not want war but desire peace as we do sunlight, and let them understand that if we don't get it Americans will attend drastically to Washington and Londoners to the neighborhood of Whitehall, and peace will then be as natural to us as money is to bankers."

There is a great deal of sense in that. The conference is only half of the job. After that it will be up to us.

On His Mind!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Mr. Patrick Sullivan, the new senator from Wyoming, first entered politics in County Cork, centering his activities on the cause of Irish freedom. The last of these activities was the beating up of a couple of British officers, after which Patrick Sullivan, then 23, left Ireland in a hurry.

He landed in New York with $5 worked on the docks until he had saved a little, decided to go to Butte, Mont., where he had friends, found that he had only enough money to reach Rawlins, Wyo., and so got off the train at Rawlins and settled down. He went to work on a sheep ranch, became foreman of the outfit after one year and a partner in that sheep business after two years. Later the sheep business centered in Utah but then Patrick Sullivan and his partner trailed their sheep across the line to Caspar, Wyo., and that has been his home ever since.

Saw Exciting Events

Those were wide open days in Wyoming and Sullivan sometimes had to do with Indians and bad men.

In 1892 Sullivan ran for the legislature and, once in, stayed 20 years. Once, when he tried for the state senate, he had a strong opponent. Previously he had never done any campaigning because he knew everyone and everyone knew him. But he got into a good-sized town one night and met a politically important friend, who invited him to have a drink of whisky out of a bottle. Patrick's eyes observed his opponent's name on a special label on the bottle. He realized that the passing out of these pints by the opponent late in the campaign might well tip the balance against him. He smelled the open bottle.

"Have you drank any of this?" he demanded, and as the friend said he had, asked: "How do you feel?" "Not so good," the man replied whereupon Pat grabbed the bottle and smashed it in the street. "Rankest poison!" he exclaimed. "That pintful would kill a horse. Thank heaven I found you in time! You need some good whisky at once. Come on!"

"So they went down to the best bar in town and Pat bought two drinks of real 25-cent whisky. "Do you feel better?" he demanded. "Much better" was the reply. "Do you know who gave me that vile stuff? It was..."

"I don't believe it," said Pat. "A man like him would never do such a thing. Did he take a drink of it himself? No? Well, now that's strange."

And so the other gent, saved from an imaginary horrible death in the nick of time, dashed about getting others to smash their pints of perfectly good whisky and persuading them that Pat Sullivan was the right candidate after all. So small was his majority that the importance of those two drinks of 25-cent whisky was obvious.

Pat was a wet in the legislative prohibition fights. Once, when a bone dry banker was speaking from the floor on the evils of liquor he asked him whether he had ever taken a drink and the banker replied that he had never tasted whisky in his life.

"You take my advice," said Pat in a brief speech still famous in Wyoming, "and go out on a cold, bleak, winter evening and drink 15 or 20 Scotch highballs. You will see the sunny side of life. It will take the cobwebs from your brain. And in all probability you will be able to see your way clear so that you can loan money at less than 12 per cent."

Inasmuch as the banker was the only one in the state who charged 12 per cent this whack was remarkably effective.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Worming the turkeys regularly was another preventative measure. A good worm tablet was given to each poult when they were 12 weeks old. It was preceded by a dose of epsom salts. Another worm tablet was given each turkey a month later. Worms are prevalent in all flocks and tend to lower their resistance to other diseases.

Other sanitary measures are moving the houses to clean land often, keeping the houses thoroughly disinfected and the premises clean.

The cash results of our project show that this method pays and all the demonstrators say that it is the only method that they will use in raising turkeys.

Mrs. J. N. Thomas of Blewins hatched 100 turkeys, she raised 84, sold 74 that weighed 1084 pounds for $355.60. The feed cost for raising the 82 was $189.80. The profit on 74 turkeys sold was $159.96. Each turkey raised averaged 14 1-2 pounds, the largest individual turkey weighed 26 pounds and brought $9.10. The smallest turkey weighed 10 pounds and was a hen Mrs. Thomas made more profit from her acre of turkeys than her husband made from any acre on the farm.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

By HENRY L. FARRELL

A Breath of Spring
The first breath of springtime, cold and warm, came brazenly into the steam-heated office of the "Star" today. The mail man brought with him a small booklet, on the cover of which stood a white elephant, trumpeting. On the elephant's back was a blue and white blanket, with a large "A." The booklet was standing on top of a circular table, on which was a bottle of "World's Champion" 1929. Below the bottle, the word "Athletics" was written. It was the year, 1930. It was the year, and training schedule of the Philadelphia Athletics, and it was the year that spring is not so far behind.

Even the battermen will be busy, humping up their winter muscles under the sun in the South. When the teams will depart for the south and west, and the training season ballyhoo will be on its full swing. Young men and old men, with portable typewriters, will go home. The big show is about to begin.

Giving Florida a Break

Of the 16 major league clubs, 10 will train in Florida. The Yankees go to St. Petersburg, the Mets to Fort Myers, the Browns to West Palm Beach, Red Sox to Pensacola, and Tigers to Tampa. Five of the National League clubs will be in Florida: the Reds at Orlando, Cardinals at Bradenton, Phils at Winter Haven, Braves at St. Petersburg and Robins at Clearwater.

Patmos-Fulton Game at Armory Tomorrow Night

Basketball fans will have an opportunity to see one of the fastest games held so far this season when the Patmos quintette meets fast five from Fulton at the Armory in Hope Friday night.

Both of these teams have been doing extensive training for several weeks and are in excellent condition, according to reports from fans from each town.

The game tomorrow night is expected to draw a large crowd from over the county and all fans are invited to attend.

Golfer to Partner: "Just look at that girl dressed like a man. I think it's disgraceful!"

Partner: "That sir, is my daughter."

Golfer: "I beg your pardon; I did not know you were her father."

Partner: "I'm not; I'm her mother."—Southwestern Telephone News.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

BING MILLER was boxing champion of his division in France. Milburn Shoffner, one of the new Indian pitchers, struck out Ruth, Lazzeri and Meisel in that order during one of the late games in the fall. But he isn't a holdout. Jamieson of the Cleveland team never is a holdout, but his contract always is the last one to be returned. Lou Gehrig struck out 17 batters in a game he pitched for Columbia against Williams, losing the game 5 to 1. Al Singer says Tony Cangelieri hit him the heaviest sock he ever took. When Doc Spessers was coaching at West Virginia, he ordered secret practice one day. There were four or five people on the sidelines and Doc asked who they were. It turned out to be the governor and a couple of high state officials. . . . out they went.

In his literature, who wrote a piece about men killing the things they love, but doing it not so much with a ball bat or a cannon as with a dirty look or a 50-cent word. Mr. Wilde must have been right about that, for the other day Mr. Arthur (Whispering) Shires was knocked out and it wasn't a swing that did the work but a 19-pound look from Commissioner Landis that turned the trick.

The judge put on his best Shakespearean scowl, hooked a wicked eyebrow to Arthur's chin and down went the Great One, like a punctured balloon. Mr. Shires may be a great actor, but he was just a beefy burlesque queen when he stacked up against Mr. Kenesaw Mountain E. H. Sothorn Landis. Arthur forgot to duck that Shakespearean eyebrow and the stuff was off.

She Struggles Zealously But Zither Sales Slump

Says U. S. Lags In Horticulture

WASHINGTON, Mo., Jan. 23.—The hot chords of "Sam the Old Accordion Man" have had their day. Now "Pete goes Tweet, Tweet, Tweet" on his piccolo. But Mrs. Anna Grohe would like to have some inmate of "Tyn-Pan-Alley" dash off a song about "Zeke Zealously Zithering on his Zither."

Mrs. Grohe is the sole owner of Washington's zither factory. A brick building on a low bluff overlooking the Missouri river houses the workshop where the now rare instrument is painstakingly made by hand. Zithers, shaped somewhat like a guitar, are no longer as common on parlor tables as they were a generation or so ago.

Mrs. Grohe and her two assistants, Albert and George Hesse, who have been zither-makers for over 30 years, make the instruments only to order. When some true zither artist wants a real zither his order finds its way to this little Missouri workshop, far removed from the snow-capped Alps of Switzerland where herdsmen first played their crude zithers centuries ago.

But the zither is not an easy instrument to master, and few people play it any more, Mrs. Grohe says. "Few people will take the time to master it when the radio and phonograph have made music possible merely by turning a switch or pushing a button," Mrs. Grohe continued.

But perhaps, a Zeke, Zeke, Zeke, went Zip, Zip Zip on his Zither" in the best vo-deo-do manner would revive the zither.

French Vets Start Review for Soldiers

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Coincident with the craze for war books, the French veterans have established a new review harking back to the days in the trenches.

The journalists who, during the war, produced the "Cri de Guerre," "Echo du Ravin" and the "Crapoulot," recently formed an association to publish a humorous war review entitled "L'Espresso du Front."

The new review will deal with humorous incidents of the trenches and the war and at the same time deal with topics of interest to the men who fought at the front.

This weather would be dandy for a special sale on thermometers while they are low.

as some of the older nations. That will come in time.

Henlock says that $25,000 a year is the appropriation for White House flowers and that twenty men are employed in the greenhouses. All the First Ladies and most of the Presidents, he adds, have had a keen appreciation of flowers.

French Divorce Totals Decline

Mill Grinds Smoothly for Americans, Not for Natives.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The divorce mills of France, which grind so smoothly for Americans, are not popular with the French, recent divorce statistics reveal. During the first nine months of 1929 there were 4,925 divorces granted in France, according to figures of the general statistical bureau of France. Instead of being an increase over the same period in 1928, it represents a healthy decrease.

This number also includes a large number of American and British divorces. Although the foreign divorces are not listed separately it would be safe to estimate that nearly 1000 were granted to foreigners, of which Americans headed the list.

The number of divorces is particularly striking when compared with the total number of marriages during the same nine-month period. For the first nine months of 1929 there were 82,817 marriages celebrated in France, an increase of more than 2,000 over the corresponding period in 1928.

Be moderate

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Fashion revels in the soft, enchanting curves of the modern figure. Don't sacrifice that graceful contour by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When tempted to treat yourself too well, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky Strike instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the modern, alluringly-rounded figure.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

MOMENTS WED LIKE TO LIVE OVER THE MODERNIST.

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer.

PERHAPS one of the most exasperating problems of winter housekeeping is found in the accumulation of meat left-overs. A few slices of roast, beef, one pork chop, some slivers of ham and the wing of a chicken, are not an inspiring collection. However, clever manipulation will make these odds and ends into a truly delicious entree.

Croquettes offer a most attractive way of using up left-overs. Meats can be used alone or in combination and the cause which is served with them does much to emphasize the interest of the dish.

Whether the meat is a left-over or freshly cooked meat prepared especially for the purpose, it must be carefully looked over. Every bit of skin, fat, or gristle must be discarded. The clear, tender meat is then minced and added to well seasoned and thoroughly cooked thick white sauce. This mixture is spread on a platter to cool before shaping.

It's a True Delicacy
The perfect croquette is soft and creamy inside with a crisp, tender, golden brown coating.

Care must be taken in crumbling and eggging or the delicate croquette mixture may break during the frying. Every particle of the surface of the croquette must be covered with crumbs, then dipped in egg and again rolled in crumbs. The most fastidious cooks use only white crumbs for crumbing since they remain a more delicate brown during cooking. The crusts of bread are not used in this case and the crumbs should be very dry.

One tablespoon of water is added to each egg used in crumbing and the mixture is beaten just enough to mix the white and yolk thoroughly.

Sometimes rice or potato is used instead of the white sauce. This naturally makes a less delicate croquette but is easier for the cook to handle, since the mixture is quite firm. Egg is used for binding the whole with either the sauce or vegetable foundation.

How to Shape Croquettes
The first shaping of croquettes

Fish Croquettes

One and one-half cups flaked fish, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 1 sliced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, crumbs, egg, Scall onion, in milk. Melt butter, stir in flour, and when bubbling, add milk strained to remove onion. Add salt, pepper and parsley and bring to the boiling point. Remove from fire and add fish sprinkled with lemon juice. Stir until blended, taking care not to crush fish. Then add a platter to cool. When cool, shape and roll in crumbs. Dip in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon water, roll again in crumbs and fry in deep, hot fat.

A frying basket is a great convenience in frying croquettes since five or six croquettes can be put in the basket and lowered into the fat at once. Less handling is necessary when they are cooked this way and there is less danger of breaking them.

requires the most gentle handling. To be sure the croquettes are the same size, it is well to measure them. Measure between two large spoons and roll gently between the hands until a smooth ball is formed. If wanted cylindrical in shape, roll lightly on a molding board dusted with sifted crumbs until the desired length. Flatten ends.

Cones are made by shaping cylinders and then rolling on the board, using one end as a pivot and swinging the other under gentle pressure around in an arc.

The fat used for frying should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread from the soft part of a loaf in 40 seconds, or 380 degrees Fahrenheit.

The above rule for fish croquettes is standard, and minced meat can be substituted for flaked fish. The seasons can be changed to suit individual tastes.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH CANTON, 1924, is a New York publishing house, married ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the department in which she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 16 in high school, and a son, JUNIOR, 10, at school.

A blundering housewife in her midlife is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Judith and Arthur sail to meet her. When Knight brings his daughter to their Long Island home the girl ignores her step-mother. Enter the teller Judith who must leave the house. Knight, overhearing, forces Tony to apologize.

The girl spends much of her time with MICKY MORTIMER, a blase amusement-seeker whom she met in Paris. Junior arrives home for the holidays and treats Judith with cold, aloof politeness. Christmas proves to be a dismal day with both children away from home and all Knight's eager preparations wasted.

Judith is uncomfortable until the boy returns to school. A letter comes from ALICE HOLLAND, who had chaperoned Tony in Europe, telling Knight of the girl's affair with Mortimer. Tony finally persuades her father that her aunt has misjudged her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

JUDITH KNIGHT hurried away from her encounter with Andy Craig with the uneasy knowledge that she was late and would have to make excuses. It had annoyed her to be caught like a truant school-girl.

At least Judith told herself that what was annoying her—how foolish she must have looked! Mrs. Arthur Knight, the wife of the eminent publisher, scurrying down a back street in short skirt and thick jersey, carrying skates. There probably was a smudge on her nose. A pretty picture to meet one of her husband's employees.

Sobered and with the sparkling enthusiasm which came from exercise dimmed, Judith went up the steps and into the house.

"Oh, Judith?"
"Yes—yes, Arthur!"
She heard him coming toward the hall from his study.

"Why, my dear, where've you been? I looked all over the place for you."

"Down the street—playing with the children!"
"But, Judith! Isn't this just a little—er—unconventional?"

"I know, Arthur, but I was so lonely!"
Arthur Knight looked down at his young wife for a moment, studying the depths of her blue eyes. Then he raised her head, holding her chin in his two hands, and kissed her lips tenderly.

"I don't want you to be lonely, Judith," he said. "We must do something about that."

Instantly she was regretful. "Oh, it was a silly thing to do!" she told him. "I didn't mean to be so late. But, anyhow, I shouldn't have gone skating on the children's pond. And there are lots and lots of other things for me to amuse myself. Gracious—why I've got everything in the world!"

WHEN they were at the table a little later Arthur brought up the subject of redecorating the house.

"I thought you were going to fix this place up a bit, Judith," he reminded her. "Hadden't you better get that job started? Why don't you go in town tomorrow and look over some truck to decide what you want?"

Judith knew he was thinking

"Andy doesn't come here to see me at all father. He comes here to see Judith."

that redecorating their home would give her something to occupy the time. Ever since Arthur Knight's son had made the scene over the broken vase the girl had put change in the house's furnishings out of her mind.

"It may take quite a lot of money," she said hesitantly.

"Well, I guess I can manage that all right. We want the place fixed up in first-class shape—don't we, Tony?"

Tony set eagerly to work on the task next day. The exterior of the house was colonial and she admired early American furniture and fabrics. She wanted to blend old time pieces with modern things and give them an air of comfort.

To achieve this required many conferences with professional decorators.

The old walnut furniture which stood in Judith's own room was to be stored in safe, dry quarters over the garage. The room was to be done over completely with tones of blue, ivory and raspberry predominating.

Tony announced she was satisfied with her French boudoir and waited no changes. Arthur Knight's bedroom was to remain exactly the same. The task of doing the house over, begun in January, was not completed until early March.

Andy Craig's first invitation to dinner at the Knight home was followed by another and yet another. Arthur sang the young man's praises continually and Judith stated quite openly that she enjoyed his company. Tony was the one who could not be counted upon.

There were Saturdays when Tony, in high good humor, set off in her own buff-colored roadster with Andy Craig beside her for hours on the golf course of Knight's exclusive club. There were evenings when she remained at home, sweetly affable, listening to radio music and conversations between Andy, her father and Judith. There were other times when the young man telephoned or stopped at the house when Tony mocked him, turned her back on him, and scoffed at his ideas of entertainment.

Judith came gaily into the room. "All ready!" she exclaimed, "and dressed up in my best to arouse my husband's jealousy! Do you think you dare accompany me, Tony man?"

Judith wore her gleaming, brown tail wrap and a small black toque which was a new acquisition. Craig rose smiling.

"I would defy even such dangerous Madam."

The goodbyes were said quickly. Judith assured her husband that she and Andy would be home before he finished the reading, and he turned to almost every evening. Then she and the young man went into the hall and out of the house.

THE sound of the car disappearing down the drive came to Knight and his daughter.

"Father," said Tony, with snuggling closer and resting her head on his shoulder. "It's awfully nice to have an evening alone with you—again!"

"Why, Tony! As though you couldn't spend every evening with me if you wanted instead of running off with all these wild young men!"

Tony raised her eyes to her father's seriously. Then she shook her head slowly.

"But it's not—like this, Father," she insisted. "I like to have you alone to myself!"

She reached up soft fingers and touched his cheek.

"Nonsense! You know you're rather free frisking around with young folks. That makes me think, Tony. You know there's something in particular I wanted to talk to you about tonight. I don't like the way you're mistreating young Andy Craig!"

"Mistreating him? How?"
"Well, he comes over here to see you night after night when you're off on other engagements or make fun of everything he says. Andy's a fine boy, I want to tell you. Any girl he pays attention to can consider herself lucky."

"I didn't want to tell you," Tony said in a strained voice. "I wasn't going to—but maybe you'd better know. Andy doesn't come here to see me at all, Father. He comes to see Judith."

Sheriff Gets Jail Peace With Ruse of Glass Eye

HOPE, Jan. 23.—The little man with a glass eye has restored peace to the neighborhood of Seneca county jail. The eye has proved a time saver for Sheriff George Burkett. And the same glass eye does not exist as far as Seneca county's prisoners are aware. Therein lies the story of an ingenious sheriff and the fullness of unsuspecting prisoners. Sheriff Burkett's county charges wouldn't behave. Meek as lambs and docile in his presence, they resorted to boisterous frolic as soon as his "blind" eye was turned.

The sheriff knew this. From his residence across the jail yard, he could hear the inmates creating trouble, which declined to a meek and innocent tranquility as soon as he stalked wrathfully through the outer iron door. His peace was disturbed. The neighbors complained. What was needed was an omnipresent eye.

To the amusement of the inmates, the sheriff drilled a long line of small holes completely across an outer wall of the jail.

Twenty-four hours after the last shaving was gouged through the last diminutive port-hole, the chuckles of Seneca county's prisoners faded. They were replaced in rapid succession by impatience, disgust and finally consternation. Their every action was now being watched by a leering, belligerent eye. The sheriff was first at one hole, then at another—always with that same malevolent stare. Inmates chafed under the almost constant surveillance. They murmured talk of boycotts, protests, petitions, appeals and the others which they could remember having heard in courts. But their complaints were always registered sotto-voice. There were no more tumultuous noises emanating from Seneca county's jail.

Meanwhile Sheriff Burkett wears a smile continuously. Several times each day, he slips from his room. From a small recess in the wall, he lifts a small, gleaming object and restores it to another hole further down the line. And the helpless prisoners on the opposite side writhe but write quietly.

Supreme Court Asked To Define Guilt In Ordering Bootleg Rum

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—America's liquor purchasing public may learn what measure of guilt as well as cracked ice and ginger ale goes into a highball.

Before the United States supreme court, in petition for review, is the case of the United States of America vs. Alfred E. Norris, one of the most noted of many recent court actions seeking to fix the guilt of a buyer of liquor.

If the court hears the case it will have to decide the question of whether a person who orders liquor, when transportation is necessary to make delivery, is guilty of conspiracy against his government.

Up to this time, a purchaser of liquor has been guilty of no federal crime, but there are various state laws against possession. Likewise, there is a movement to write into federal law a provision to make the buyer guilty with the seller.

There is this about the Norris case, however: it seeks to fix the guilt only of an individual who orders liquor and thus, in effect, arranges for its transportation. The person who buys from a bootlegger, who, unsolicited, brings his wares to the home, is not involved.

Norris, a New York broker, ordered liquor over a period of months from Joel D. Kerper in Philadelphia. Each was indicted; Kerper is in Atlanta, Norris won in Pennsylvania as a charge of conspiracy. Kerper pleaded guilty and is in Atlanta. Norris won in the lower courts and the government appealed.

The record specifically points out that "said rye whiskey was purchased by defendant, Alfred E. Norris, for his own consumption or that of his guests; and he was in no sense a dealer of liquor."

While the Norris-Kerper transactions were between two cities, it is pointed out that a phone call to a bootlegger in the same city as the prospective purchaser would result in transportation.

Thus at stake is the broad issue of liquor purchasing by order, no matter what distance separates the man with the thirst and that one with the means to satisfy it.

The court is expected to pass upon the application for review within a few weeks, and, if it is granted, to hear the case probably before the end of the present term.
